

In 1985 Royal Hawaiian Express was established to provide transportation service to the Hawaiian Islands. Over the years, superior customer service and on-time delivery have built our reputation of excellence, enabling the rapid growth and expansion of Royal Hawaiian Express. RPM Transportation (Hawaii), Inc. was formed in 1989 to deliver products on the Island of Oahu, and our ground fleet continues its expansion to this day. In 1990, our sailing increased to twice weekly, and in 2008 and again in 2013, we expanded our Pearl City warehouse to meet the needs of our clients. Our efforts remain the same, to exceed the expectations of our customers.

Today, because of our commitment to excellent service at competitive rates, Royal Hawaiian Express continues its annual double digit growth of both cube and revenue. State of the art communications, and our knowledgeable and well trained professionals are ready to assist you, . . . Royal Hawaiian Express is Your Carrier to Paradise.

Kauai, known as the "Garden Island" is the oldest island in the chain. Kauai is blessed with the most rainfall in the world; some 600 inches a year on the summit of Waialeale. Much of Kauai has remained untouched through the centuries. The chief port of Kauai is Nawiliwili near the capital of Lihue.

Hawaii, known as the "Big Island" or the "Orchid Island" is the largest island in the chain. The island is dominated by the famous mountains, Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa. The latter is still an active volcano. The principal port of Hawaii is Hilo, set in the crescent of Hilo Bay. Kawaihae, on the west side of Hawaii, is the newest port serving the Kona coast.

Maui is the state's second largest island, known as the "Valley Island." Here the quaint, old town of Lahaina holds onto her memories of the days when the whaling ships dropped anchor in 1843. While best known for sugar and pineapple, Maui is also a very important producer of meats, vegetables, and fruits. Today, Maui's principal port is Kahului on the east side of the island.
